

“The Ransom of Red Chief”

1. The protagonist of any story is the “good” guy of the story that the audience sympathizes with. The protagonist of this story is _____ because _____

2. The antagonist of any story is the villain or the person that keeps the protagonist from getting what he wants. The antagonist of this story is _____ because _____
_____.
3. The turning point, or of any story is the point of greatest interest and where the story comes together for the reader. In this story, the turning point occurs when _____

4. The resolution in any story occurs when the conflict or problem is resolved. In this story, the resolution occurs when _____

5. The point of view of this person is _____ person because _____ tells the story.

Describe Johnny Dorset's attitude before, during, and after his captivity. Include his experiences, his effect on Bill and Sam, and a description of events that took place throughout his ordeal.

Explain the efforts of Bill and Sam to kidnap the son of the prominent citizen, Ebenezer Dorset. Why did they decide to kidnap Johnny? What did they expect to happen, and what actually happened?